

Non-Medical Switching and Movement Disorders

Movement disorders require tailored treatment.

Each medication works differently for each patient.

But non-medical switching forces patients off medication that works for them.

Insurance companies and pharmacy benefit managers push stable patients' medications out of reach by:

Eliminating coverage or

Making cost-sharing unmanageable

Forced off their tailored treatment, patients may face:

Deteriorating Symptoms

Reduced Quality of Life

New Access Challenge

Health care providers and patients, not insurance companies, should make treatment decisions.
